H. H. MILLER IS ELECTED HEAD OF COMMERCE BODY

Newly Chosen Director Assumes Duties of Office; Other Officers Are Named At Meeting.

H. H. Miller, Baltimore street, manager of the Gettysburg Gas Company, whose elevation to membership on the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce was announced Monday, Tuesday evening, by being elected president of the board.

Mr. Miller succeeds Edmund W. Thomas, Lincoln avenue, vice president of the First National Bank, as president. Mr. Thomas directed Secretary C. E. Sloane to call a meeting of the reorganized board of directors Tuesday afternoon for the same evening.

The new president has been a resident of Gettysburg for three years, and during that time has been an active civic worker. He has materially assisted the Chamber of Commerce with all the projects it has launched, and has worked faithfully for the successful culmination of all activities of that organization, according to persons familiar with his efforts.

Received Big Vote

Although Mr. Miller has been a member of the Chamber of Commerce since he came to Gettysburg, it was only this year that his name was placed in nomination for a place on the board of directors. In the balloting, he received one of the largest votes ever polled for any director.

So favorably have his services as a member impressed the other directors that, when he was elected to membership on the board, he was honored by being elevated at once to the presidency. The retiring president, Mr. Thomas, and the directors present at the Tuesday evening meeting spoke highly of Mr. Miller's ability as an organizer, worker and leader.

Name Secretary Later

George W. Bochner, East Lincoln avenue, auditor for the local furniture company, was elected vice president at the meeting, and David Blocher was unanimously re-elected treasurer of the organization.

No other business was transacted at the meeting. Election of a secretary will be held later. Mr. Sloane, the present secretary, will be a candidate for re-election, it was learned today.

Directors present at the Tuesday evening session were Edmund W. Thomas, W. A. Miller, David Blocher, George W. Bochner, C. A. Bixler, A. A. Jones, Henry Schaff, H. C. Mitinger and P. W. Stallsmith.

APPRAISERS FOR EAGLE HOTEL ARE ABOUT THROUGH

Aggregate Value Of Personal Property In Hostelry Falls Below First Estimate.

The three appraisers, named by Judge Albert J. Johnson, of the federal court for the middle district, to fix a value on the personal property of George W. Lynch, former proprietor of the Eagle Hotel, closed recently, expect to complete their task tonight.

The trio have been working since Monday, and have been assisted by J. Harry Holtzworth, former clerk at the hotel, as their clerk.

George Eberhart, Springs avenue, whose father, Frank Eberhart, Harrisburg, owner of the building, secured a writ in common pleas court here to oust Mr. Lynch as proprietor, after the latter had defaulted five months in the payment of $2,000 rent, has been with the appraisers since they started work in order that none of the real estate in the building may be taken in the appraisement.

The appraisers are R. W. Wentz, Gettysburg; J. W. Yeisley, Millmont, and T. B. Steininger, Lewisburg. They were named after Mr. Lynch was adjudged a bankrupt. The bankruptcy proceedings were taken by more than 75 creditors whose claims aggregate $33,074.97.

Aggregate Value Less

Assets of Mr. Lynch are listed at $22,585, and before the appraisement began, unofficial observers said the furnishings and provisions in the hotel, which comprise the personal property of Mr. Lynch, would have a gross value of $22,500, but it was indicated by persons assisting the appraisers today that the aggregate value of the personal property will be less than $20,000.

The next step in the bankruptcy proceedings, the calling of a meeting of the so-called common creditors, has been held up by the absence of William H. Kurtz, York, referee in bankruptcy, who is on his vacation. It has been expected the call for the creditors' meeting would be issued early this week for the latter part of the week, but the meeting has now been put off indefinitely.

Mr. Kurtz, who was appointed referee in bankruptcy because J. Donald Swope, referee for Adams county, represented Mr. Eberhart in the latter proceedings, will not return from his vacation until the latter part of the week or the beginning of next, it was stated at his office in York today.

BENDERSVILLE'S WATER IS LOW

Owners of Water Driven Washing Machines Requested to Aid in Saving Supply.

Fear of a shortage in water has prompted the borough council of Bendersville to request that the use of water driven washing machines be suspended until more rain has fallen in that vicinity.

While the situation is not in the least alarming, the borough fathers, after an inspection of the borough reservoir, decided that it would be advisable for the residents to curtail the enormous use of water at the present time, since the level in the reservoir has not reached the drain pipe for several weeks.

As there are nearly one hundred such machines of this type being used in the borough on Mondays, it was the opinion of the councilmen that a great saving could be effected in the water supply if the residents would refrain from using their power driven machines for a short time. The response to this request has been almost unanimous from the owners and little trouble is expected from lack of water during the present dry period.

MOTOR CLUB TO BE FORMED HERE IN NEAR FUTURE

Car Owners Throughout County Will Be Given Opportunity to Join Local Association.

Preliminary plans were made today for the eventual formation of a motor club here, which will become affiliated with the Pennsylvania Motor Federation and in turn the American Automobile Association.

The committee, appointed Tuesday at the luncheon given by Richard F. Haldeman, president of the state organization, formulated plans whereby the county would be canvassed and all motorists would be given an opportunity to become connected with this body which has for its purpose the general service throughout the nation to its members.

With nearly 200 autoists in the county already holding membership in the Harrisburg Motor Club, who will automatically become members of the local organization, it is expected that 600 additional car owners will be received into membership.

Aid To Tourists

The purpose of the club is fundamentally one of service to the motorist whether traveling away from or remaining in his home community, providing emergency service and free towing in case of accident, information of routes and roads, legal advice and in case of arrest for a motor violation a bond to the extent of $100.

A prospectus of the state organization which has been received by members of the committee further set forth that it is a non-political, non-profit organization and for the situation which exists here where a million tourists visit annually a service of inestimable value could be rendered to them.

In the eventuality of the establishment of the club, an office for the convenience of local and visiting members will be opened at which information of the condition of roads, maps of the various routes, and advice on the hundred and one problems which confront the tourist throughout the country will be obtainable.

According to the members of the committee, the dues for the club will be nominal and it was suggested that they be placed on a sliding scale, decreasing in proportion to the number of members which could be secured.

As soon as it can be conveniently arranged a public meeting will be called at which time a member of the state executive office will lay before the motorists the basic purposes and aims of the local, state and national organization; at this time also officers for the local club will be chosen by the club members.

According to a member of the committee interest in the formation of such a club has been expressed by a number of local motorists who are anxious that Gettysburg be represented in the national association, not only for the advantages which will be received by the local motorists, but also in having an institution which will give aid to a large number of tourists who visit the battlefield here.

3 CADDIES HELD FOR ROBBING OF POST OFFICE TILL

Biglerville Youths Caught By State Police After Having Returned From Harrisburg.

Turning from their usual peaceful pursuits as caddies for golfers at the Quaker Valley Country Club, Guernsey, three Biglerville boys, one sixteen and the other two 14 years old, tried their hands at the dangerous task of burglary, Monday evening, by breaking into the post office at Guernsey, and escaping with $110 in cash.

In staging the robbery, the three youths did not reckon on the ability of state police in running down clues.

While the boys were enjoying the fruits of their ill-gotten gains in Harrisburg, state police, working under cover, laid the groundwork for their arrest as soon as the youthful spree was over.

All Are Arrested

Consequently, when the youths returned Tuesday, one was arrested at his home, and the other two were taken into custody at the local drive-it-yourself station in Center Square. The trio were placed in jail where they will have time to meditate on the ultimate outcome of their escapade in breaking into a government post office.

The three boys who were committed to jail Tuesday were Emmert Fidler, 16; Dale Miller, 14, and Leroy Warner, 11. They have confessed the theft, state police said.

The Guernsey post office is in charge of Z. J. Peters, who operates the place in connection with the express, freight and ticket station of the Reading railroad. Between 6 and 7 o'clock, Monday evening, Mr. Peters locked up his place of business until he went to his home for the evening meal.

During his absence, the three boys are alleged to have broken in through the rear door of the place and rifled the cash drawer. Mr. Peters said he discovered his loss as soon as he returned from supper, but did not notify state police until Tuesday morning, preferring to run to earth a few clues of his own, his suspicions having been directed toward the three youths, who spent much of their time at his place of business when they were not caddying on the golf links across the railroad tracks.

With Mr. Peters' suspicions as the basis for their investigation, state police had little trouble in apprehending the trio when the time was propitious.

Hire Auto

From the boys, state police learned, they say, that Fidler and Warner came to Gettysburg late Monday evening, and the former engaged an automobile from C. R. Bollinger, manager of the local Drive-it-yourself service, at 10:30 o'clock. Fidler told Bollinger, the latter said, that he wanted to go to Harrisburg early Tuesday morning and for that reason wished to take the car to his home overnight.

The flushed condition of Fidler's pocketbook was reflected in the fact that, instead of giving Bollinger the usual $10 guarantee for the automobile, he paid him $15, saying he might be gone longer than he intended. The car was taken out at 10:30 o'clock Monday night.

At 3 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon, Fidler and Warner returned the automobile to the local service station with 105 miles registered on the speedometer.

When Fidler and Warner returned to the Drive-it-yourself station here, they apparently suspected that the police were closing in upon them for Fidler, police said, went into a small room and threw $65 in bills into a drain where it was flushed into the sanitary sewer.

After taking Fidler and Warner into custody, state police arrested Miller at his home. The three boys were then cross-examined by the officers and confessed, state police asserted.

Only $7 of the $110 was recovered.

MOTOR CLUB TO BE FORMED HERE IN NEAR FUTURE

Car Owners Throughout County Will Be Given Opportunity to Join Local Association.

Preliminary plans were made today for the eventual formation of a motor club here, which will become affiliated with the Pennsylvania Motor Federation and in turn the American Automobile Association.

The committee, appointed Tuesday at the luncheon given by Richard E. Haldeman, president of the state organization, formulated plans whereby the county would be canvassed and all motorists would be given an opportunity to become connected with this body which has for its purpose the general service throughout the nation to its members.

With nearly 200 autoists in the county already holding membership in the Harrisburg Motor Club, who will automatically become members of the local organization, it is expected that 600 additional car owners will be received into membership.

Aid To Tourists

The purpose of the club is fundamentally one of service to the motorist whether traveling away from or remaining in his home community, providing emergency service and free towing in case of accident, information of routes and roads, legal advice and in case of arrest for a motor violation a bond to the extent of $100.

A prospectus of the state organization which has been received by members of the committee further sets forth that it is a non-political, non-profit organization and for the situation which exists here where a million tourists visit annually a service of inestimable value could be rendered to them.

In the eventuality of the establishment of the club, an office for the convenience of local and visiting members will be opened at which information of the condition of roads, maps of the various routes, and advice on the hundred and one problems which confront the tourist throughout the country will be obtainable.

According to the members of the committee, the dues for the club will be nominal and it was suggested that they be placed on a sliding scale, decreasing in proportion to the number of members which could be secured.

As soon as it can be conveniently arranged a public meeting will be called at which time a member of the state executive office will lay before the motorists the basic purposes and aims of the local, state and national organization; at this time also officers for the local club will be chosen by the club members.

According to a member of the committee interest in the formation of such a club has been expressed by a number of local motorists who are anxious that Gettysburg be represented in the national association, not only for the advantages which will be received by the local motorists, but also in having an institution which will give aid to a large number of tourists who visit the battlefield here.

3 CADDIES HELD FOR ROBBING OF POST OFFICE TILL

Biglerville Youths Caught By State Police After Having Returned From Harrisburg.

Turning from their usual peaceful pursuits as caddies for golfers at the Quaker Valley Country Club, Guernsey, three Biglerville boys, one sixteen and the other two 14 years old, tried their hands at the dangerous task of burglary, Monday evening, by breaking into the post office at Guernsey, and escaping with $110 in cash.

In staging the robbery, the three youths did not reckon on the ability of state police in running down clues.

While the boys were enjoying the fruits of their ill-gotten gains in Harrisburg, state police, working under cover, laid the groundwork for their arrest as soon as the youthful spree was over.

All Are Arrested

Consequently, when the youths returned Tuesday, one was arrested at his home, and the other two were taken into custody at the local drive-it-yourself station in Center Square. The trio were placed in jail where they will have time to meditate on the ultimate outcome of their escapade in breaking into a government post office.

The three boys who were committed to jail Tuesday were Emmert Fidler, 16; Dale Miller, 14, and Leroy Warner, 14. They have confessed the theft, state police said.

The Guernsey post office is in charge of Z. J. Peters, who operates the place in connection with the express, freight and ticket station of the Reading railroad. Between 6 and 7 o'clock, Monday evening, Mr. Peters locked up his place of business until he went to his home for the evening meal.

During his absence, the three boys are alleged to have broken in through the rear door of the place and rifled the cash drawer. Mr. Peters said he discovered his loss as soon as he returned from supper, but did not notify state police until Tuesday morning, preferring to run to earth a few clues of his own, his suspicions having been directed toward the three youths, who spent much of their time at his place of business when they were not caddying on the golf links across the railroad tracks.

With Mr. Peters' suspicions as the basis for their investigation, state police had little trouble in apprehending the trio when the time was propitious.

Hire Auto

From the boys, state police learned, they say, that Fidler and Warner came to Gettysburg late Monday evening, and the former engaged an automobile from C. R. Bollinger, manager of the local Drive-it-yourself service, at 10:30 o'clock. Fidler told Bollinger, the latter said, that he wanted to go to Harrisburg early Tuesday morning and for that reason wished to take the car to his home overnight.

The flushed condition of Fidler's pocketbook was reflected in the fact that, instead of giving Bollinger the usual $10 guarantee for the automobile, he paid him $15, saying he might be gone longer than he intended. The car was taken out at 10:30 o'clock Monday night.

At 3 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon, Fidler and Warner returned the automobile to the local service station with 105 miles registered on the speedometer.

Throw Money Away

When Fidler and Warner returned to the Drive-it-yourself station here, they apparently suspected that the police were closing in upon them for Fidler, police said, went into a small room and threw $65 in bills into a drain where it was flushed into the sanitary sewer.

After taking Fidler and Warner into custody, state police arrested Miller at his home. The three boys were then cross-examined by the officers and confessed, state police asserted.

Only $7 of the $110 was recovered.

START FIGHT ON POORHOUSES

Organized Efforts Will be Made to Abolish Almshouses; Action Follows Survey.

Des Moines, Iowa.—An organized effort to abolish the poorhouse as an American institution will be launched as the result of an investigation financed by a dozen fraternal organizations and the Department of Labor.

Harry C. Evans, of Des Moines, special Commissioner of Secretary of Labor Davis, in a report made public upon a two-years' nationwide survey of almshouses, recommends complete abolition of the prevailing county poorhouse system and the continuance of its essential functions in a central home for the aged and friendless in each Commonwealth.

The present system, under which each county maintains a separate institution, is described in the report as "the most mismanaged public business in the world" and "the symbol of humanity's degradations."

The central home plan will be submitted, together with a detailed report of the survey, to the annual convention of American Fraternal Congresses, at Buffalo, New York, on August 16. Affiliated societies will be urged to assist in bringing the Commissioner's recommendations to the attention of every State Legislature in the next two years.

The suggested plan, the report said, "would dignify the last days of the poor, give them a home rather than a mere lodging house, where now are kept not only the indigent, but often the insane, the criminal and the feebleminded."

Replacing the county poorhouse system and continuance of its essential functions in central homes for the aged in each state is a child of the brain of Secretary of Labor Davis, head of the Loyal Order of Moose.

The theory has been put in practice in the Moose's two homes at Moosehaven, Florida, and Mooseheart, Illinois. At Moosehaven aged husbands and wives are housed together in modern bungalows, employed within their physical powers, and given free medical, dental, and surgical attention, and paid salaries. Those not able to work are placed on a "Committee on Smilage" and paid salaries, their only requirements being to smile.

TEXANS DEMAND THAT "MA" RESIGN

"Powerless to do Anything," Dan Moody, Successful Candidate, Declares.

Austin, Texas, July 28.—Demands that Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson resign immediately, in compliance with her campaign promise, arose over Texas yesterday in the wake of her defeat at the polls Saturday and her announcement Monday that she would not step out of office before next fall.

Dan Moody, 33-year-old attorney-general, who defeated the woman governor for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination by more than 100,000 votes, declared Mrs. Ferguson was not living up to their campaign agreement.

Moody said he was powerless to force the governor to quit, adding that it was "for the people to determine how and when their demand expressed at the ballot box should be complied with."

Mrs. Ferguson promised early in the campaign to resign "immediately" if Moody defeated her by one vote. In her proclamation, calling a special session of the legislature to validate Texas road bonds and to investigate any phases of her administration, she said she would wait until the matters before this session had been disposed of before resigning. She said she hoped to return to private life not later than November 1.

Moody, who had accepted Mrs. Ferguson's challenge to quit his office if she led him by 25,000 votes, declared that had the result been against him he would have resigned immediately.

Moody Still Lacks Majority
The county conventions will select delegates to the state convention, which is held after the second primary. The second primary, for all offices in which a run-off is necessary, is August 28.

On returns Tuesday from 247 out of 252 counties Moody lacked 788 of a majority over all candidates. It was considered by election experts that Mrs. Ferguson's withdrawal from the run-off leaves Moody automatically the party nominee.

ELSIE JANIS GETS

New York, July 27.—Elsie Janis, actress who was separated from jewels valued at $50,000 when she arrived from abroad last Tuesday, issued from a three-hour session with customs officials yesterday wreathed in smiles.

"Here are my jewels," she cried, "all of them. It was a charming experience."

Despite Miss Janis' statement, Collector Elting announced that two pieces of jewelry had been held pending further investigation.

PRAY FOR MEXICO
BISHOP URGES

Catholics Throughout World Asked to Join in Supplications For Priests.

Urging Catholic congregations in this vicinity to join with Catholics all over the world next Sunday in prayer for relief in Mexico, where the recent official edict has limited the powers of the church, the Rt. Rev. Philip R. McDevitt, bishop of the Harrisburg diocese, has sent letters to the priests of all churches under his jurisdiction.

The communication contains a copy of the letter received by Bishop McDevitt from the Rt. Rev. P. Fumasoni-Biondi, archbishop of Dioclea, Apostolic Delegate, which describes the results of the Mexican ukase which characterizes as a "true and real persecution against the Catholic religion," and asks for the pardoning of the "persecutors."

It is also contended in the letter that liberties shown other sects in Mexico are not only denied Catholics but that the Papal representative as well as the Apostolic Delegate and foreign-born priests and sisters are expelled from the country. Churches from which priests were driven by violence have been seized by the civil authorities and limitations have been placed upon the number of native-born priests and diocese, according to the letter.

Catholics throughout the world are asked by the Pope to join their prayers with those at Rome next Sunday, which is the Feast of St. Peter in Chains, the day when the prayers of the followers of the church, according to legend, brought timely intervention from God in the first persecution of the church. Sunday is also appropriate for the offering of prayers inasmuch as it falls on the day of the great Portiuncula Indulgence.

POISON BOOZE
VENDOR HELD

First Degree Murder Charge Will be Lodged Against Man Who Sold Wood Alcohol.

Buffalo, July 28.—District Attorney Moore yesterday ordered a charge of first-degree murder filed against James G. Voelker, alleged distributor of poison liquor which has caused fourteen deaths in Buffalo.

More than a score of others have died in nearby towns and across the Canadian border from wood alcohol within the last week.

Voelker walked into police headquarters unexpectedly Tuesday morning and surrendered.

"We have evidence to show that Voelker knew he was selling wood alcohol," Mr. Moore said.

At least twenty persons have been arrested in connection with the poisonings in Western New York and Ontario. Five manslaughter charges have been filed and others were to be made later.

"CANDY KID" LOSES
FIGHT FOR LIFE

Baltimore, July 28.—Richard Reese Whittemore's last move to evade the noose was defeated late Tuesday afternoon when Governor Ritchie refused to commute the bandit's sentence to life imprisonment.

The "Candy Kid" is scheduled to die in the early morning of Friday, August 13.

For two hours Edgar Allen Poe, Whittemore's attorney, argued that if the leader of the gang believed to have stolen $1,200,000 in jewels were hanged, it would be a "legal lynching." He told the governor the Maryland law provides that the "slaying of a penitentiary guard during an escape shall be defined as second degree murder."

Stunningly gowned, Margaret Whittemore, known as "Tiger Lil," the condemned man's wife, attended the hearing, listening intently to the attorney's argument.

TELLS HOW BOLT
STRUCK PLANE

Dying Man Describes Experiences in Which Five Were Killed.

Berlin, July 28.—A graphic story has been told by a dying man of an airplane being struck by lightning in a great storm and its fall to the earth. The plane carrying four passengers from the Island of Borkum to Norderney, in the North Sea, encountered a storm recently and fell in flames on the Island of Juist, which lies between the other two.

The pilot and three passengers, including a woman, were killed outright, and the sole survivor, a manufacturer, was seriously injured. He died soon afterward in the hospital, but was able before his death to give an account of the tragedy.

"The machine was flying at a height of 1000 feet when the storm broke," he said. "Thick clouds encircled us, while lightning flashed incessantly and torrents of rain tossed the machine in all directions."

"Suddenly we were blinded by a dazzling flash; a blast of terrible heat and suffocating smoke rendered us half unconscious. The airplane began to drop with increasing rapidity. Horror-stricken, we seized the hand straps. Everything seemed to happen in a few seconds. I remember just about the moment we struck the ground, I attempted to jump, and I only recovered my senses in the hands of the doctors."

CZAR'S FORTUNE
IN ENGLISH BANK

Lack of Legal Proof of Death of Former Russian Emperor Withholds Many Heirs.

London, July 28.—Italian newspapers received here contain a remarkable statement regarding the private fortune of the late Emperor of Russia.

"On the authority of a high personage formerly of the court of Nicholas the Second," it is declared that a capital sum of 12,000,000 pounds sterling, plus accrued interest, is still on deposit in London for the account of the late Czar. Surviving members of the royal family are said to be disposed to accept arbitration by King George or the King of Italy regarding the distribution of the wealth.

The difficulty in the way lies in the fact that no legal proof of the death of the Czar and his family exists. According to the authorities quoted the fortune before the war was much greater, but the Czar used great sums to meet his country's needs and alleviating war time distress. After the revolution a considerable amount was used in financing the plans for the escape of the royal family.

Inquiries of British and Russian officials in London throw little light on the whereabouts of the board. The Soviet embassy said that there is no doubt that large sums of Czarist money exist in several banks throughout Europe.

MEXICANS LYNCH
MAYOR OF TOWN

Report Says That Attempted Attack on Catholic Priest Led to Summary Hanging.

Mexico City, July 28.—The first death from violence in the conflict between the government and the Catholic church to be reported is a lynching of the Mayor of Nochistlan, State of Zacatecas, who attacked a Catholic priest there.

A correspondent for a national paper says that the priest and the mayor, Humberto Cervantes, had an argument in the mayor's office over registration, that the mayor shot at the priest and ordered him under arrest.

The villagers, becoming infuriated, hanged the mayor.

The report has not been confirmed. The Archbishop of Mexico, the most Rev. Mora y Del Rio, fainted through exhaustion in the City Cathedral Monday. He was engaged in the task of confirming about 5,000 children. He is 72 years old.

The Archbishop was revived and, despite the protests of his associates, returned with tottering steps and continued his holy offices.

BLUSH NO SIGN OF ROBBERY

Munich, Bavaria, July 28.—Blushing when spoken to by a goodlooking girl is not sufficient evidence to show an unsophisticated young man is guilty of a crime, the Munich Court of Appeals has ruled.

Lola Springer, a typist, lost a 50-mark bill on the street. Retracing her steps she accosted Emil Junge, the first person she happened to meet, and asked him whether he had found the money. Junge stammered that he had not; his face reddened; so Lola had him arrested. The Municipal Court fined him $100. He appealed and the higher court dismissed the case.

King Albert Eats
"Near War" Bread

Church Reunion At Pen-Mar Thursday

Brussels, July 28.—King Albert and Queen Elizabeth today ate dark bread—near-war bread—as part of the stringent measures of economy which have been put into effect in Belgium to stem the decline of the Belgian franc. The same bread is now being eaten in mansions on the Avenue Louise in Brussels and the most modest hamlet in Flanders.

The saving in bread alone is estimated at 10,000,000 francs a month, and when the new crops are harvested will amount to about 40,000,000 francs.

"Mummie," a Maltese cat, lost in Florida for eight months, is back at its home in Pittsburgh after a 1,200 mile trip.

With bruised paws, nicked ears and sleek coat worn to a frazzle, she appeared at the door of the home of William R. Shoop, father of Mrs. Jack Weber, her owner, and scratched for entrance.

When the door was opened "Mummie" walked through upon unsteady legs and purred happily, once more safely ensconced in familiar surroundings. How she traveled the long journey is a mystery.

SAVAGES DRESSED IN LINGERIE HELP SALVAGE VESSEL

Quickly Don Silk Hats and Parisian Garments, But Are Unable to Get Champagne.

New York.—Ebon-hued natives of darkest San Salvador, wearing the finest and finest of Parisian lingerie and high silk hats, helped salvage the Commonwealth and Dominion liner Port Kembla off Watling's Island, according to the strange tale brought here by sixty-eight rescued sailors who were taken from the shipwrecked vessel by the United Fruit liner Maravi.

The chemises, step-ins, teddy bears and slips in which the natives, men and women, hid their black hides as they gleefully helped to lighten the Port Kembla after the steamer went on the rocks were part of a cargo which had been intended for the exclusive women's shops of New Zealand.

Pianos, motorcycles, automobiles and radio sets were among the Port Kembla's cargo, and these were thrown overboard, seized and taken ashore by the delighted natives.

Volunteers Pound Piano
The rescued sailors told of one piano, water-soaked but musical to the native ear, which was set up on the beach within view of the stranded vessel and pounded upon by volunteer performers.

Most important of all, the Port Kembla carried a cargo of $100,000 worth of champagne. At the time when the sixty-eight sailors were taken off, the captain and eleven of the crew who remained aboard the vessel had not sacrificed this part of the cargo in the interests of lightening their craft, but the natives were waiting with avidity.

The Port Kembla went on a rocky reef off Watling's Island and Capt. C. Vandenberg was forced to send out a radio call for help. This was answered by the United Fruit liner, which went 270 miles out of its course to the stricken steamer's aid. Watling's Island is off the coast of San Salvador.

A wrecking tug, the Killeryig, also was summoned, and attempted to pull the Port Kembla from the reef, but at the time the Maravi left the island it was feared that the steamer, of 11,600 gross tons, valued at $4,000,000, would be a total loss.

Induce Natives to Help
When Capt. Vandenberg first found himself on the reef, he induced the natives of Watling's Island to help lighten the vessel.

They came willingly, wearing beads and smiles, but when they left each man and woman had a high hat from London, and chiefs were disputing with their women over the wearing of ribboned lingerie direct from Paris.

As the crates pianos, automobiles and motorcycles were thrown overboard, the natives propelled these ashore, smashed over the crates and set up their exhibits on the beach.

Each time the "salvagers" returned to the Port Kembla they inquired: "How soon throw over bubble drink."

But Captain Vandenberg was still guarding this part of the liner's cargo as the Maravi departed.

Crosses Atlantic For 102nd Time

New York, July 28.—Philip J. Peabody, lawyer and economist, of Boston, is also eligible for championship honors as a trans-Atlantic voyager.

His arrival at Hoboken aboard the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VII from Copenhagen marked the end of his 102nd crossing of the Atlantic. He sails again after a short visit to his home.

"Talkless Golf" Hard For Women

Hastings, Neb., July 28.—Fifteen women golfers believe they have set at rest for all time their husbands' accusation of undue loquacity, for recently these women played nine holes without talking.

It was agreed they could talk only on the fairways, with conversation on the greens and tees to be penalized one stroke. The women played airtight, however, and not a word was spoken.

Teachers Attend School

Through the fund created by the late Henry C. Frick, 261 Pittsburgh public school teachers have received scholarships for summer school at universities and colleges throughout the country this year. The scholarships, of this year, have an aggregate value of $42,000.

Sixty-one of the teachers selected Columbia University for their summer work. The University of Wisconsin was chosen by 27; Harvard University by 26; University of Pittsburgh 24, and University of California, 14.

START FIGHT ON POORHOUSES

Organized Efforts Will be Made to Abolish Almshouses; Action Follows Survey.

Des Moines, Iowa.—An organized effort to abolish the poorhouse as an American institution will be launched as the result of an investigation financed by a dozen fraternal organizations and the Department of Labor.

Harry C. Evans, of Des Moines, special Commissioner of Secretary of Labor Davis, in a report made public upon a two-years' nation-wide survey of almshouses, recommends complete abolition of the prevailing county poorhouse system and the continuance of its essential functions in a central home for the aged and friendless in each Commonwealth.

The present system, under which each county maintains a separate institution, is described in the report as "the most mismanaged public business in the world" and "the symbol of humanity's degradations."

The central home plan will be submitted, together with a detailed report of the survey, to the annual convention of American Fraternal Congresses, at Buffalo, New York, on August 16. Affiliated societies will be urged to assist in bringing the Commissioner's recommendations to the attention of every State Legislature in the next two years.

The suggested plan, the report said, "would dignify the last days of the poor, give them a home rather than a mere lodging house, where now are kept not only the indigent, but often the insane, the criminal and the feeble-minded."

Replacing the county poorhouse system and continuance of its essential functions in central homes for the aged in each state is a child of the brain of Secretary of Labor Davis, head of the Loyal Order of Moose.

The theory has been put in practice in the Moose's two homes at Moosehaven, Florida, and Mooseheart, Illinois. At Moosehaven aged husbands and wives are housed together in modern bungalows, employed within their physical powers, and given free medical, dental, and surgical attention, and paid salaries. Those not able to work are placed on a "Committee on Smilage" and paid salaries, their only requirements being to smile.

TEXANS DEMAND THAT "MA" RESIGN

"Powerless to do Anything,"
Dan Moody, Successful Candidate, Declares.

Austin, Texas, July 28.—Demands that Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson resign immediately, in compliance with her campaign promise, arose over Texas yesterday in the wake of her defeat at the polls Saturday and her announcement Monday that she would not step out of office before next fall.

Dan Moody, 33-year-old attorney-general, who defeated the woman governor for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination by more than 100,000 votes, declared Mrs. Ferguson was not living up to their campaign agreement.

Moody said he was powerless to force the governor to quit, adding that it was "for the people to determine how and when their demand expressed at the ballot box should be complied with."

Mrs. Ferguson promised early in the campaign to resign "immediately" if Moody defeated her by one vote. In her proclamation, calling a special session of the legislature to validate Texas road bonds and to investigate any phases of her administration, she said she would wait until the matters before this session had been disposed of before resigning. She said she hoped to return to private life not later than November 1.

Moody, who had accepted Mrs. Ferguson's challenge to quit his office if she led him by 25,000 votes, declared that had the result been against him he would have resigned immediately.

Moody Still Lacks Majority

The county conventions will select delegates to the state convention, which is held after the second primary. The second primary, for all offices in which a run-off is necessary, is August 28.

On returns Tuesday from 247 out of 252 counties Moody lacked 788 of a majority over all candidates. It was considered by election experts that Mrs. Ferguson's withdrawal from the run-off leaves Moody automatically the party nominee.

ELSIE JANIS GETS JEWELS ONCE MORE

New York, July 27.—Elsie Janis, actress who was separated from jewels valued at $50,000 when she arrived from abroad last Tuesday, issued from a three-hour session with customs officials yesterday wreathed in smiles.

"Here are my jewels," she cried, "all of them. It was a charming experience."

Despite Miss Janis' statement, Collector Elting announced that two pieces of jewelry had been held pending further investigation.

PRAY FOR MEXICO BISHOP URGES

Catholics Throughout World
Asked to Join in Supplications For Priests.

Urging Catholic congregations in this vicinity to join with Catholics all over the world next Sunday in prayer for relief in Mexico, where the recent official edict has limited the powers of the church, the Rt. Rev. Philip R. McDevitt, bishop of the Harrisburg diocese, has sent letters to the priests of all churches under his jurisdiction.

The communication contains a copy of the letter received by Bishop McDevitt from the Rt. Rev. P. Fumasoni-Biondi, archbishop of Dioclea, Apostolic Delegate, which describes the results of the Mexican ukase which characterizes as a "true and real persecution against the Catholic religion," and asks for the pardoning of the "persecutors."

It is also contended in the letter that liberties shown other sects in Mexico are not only denied Catholics but that the Papal representative as well as the Apostolic Delegate and foreign-born priests and sisters are expelled from the country. Churches from which priests were driven by violence have been seized by the civil authorities and limitations have been placed upon the number of native-born priests and diocese, according to the letter.

Catholics throughout the world are asked by the Pope to join their prayers with those at Rome next Sunday, which is the Feast of St. Peter in Chains, the day when the prayers of the followers of the church, according to legend, brought timely intervention from God in the first persecution of the church. Sunday is also appropriate for the offering of prayers inasmuch as it falls on the day of the great Portiuncula Indulgence.

POISON BOOZE VENDOR HELD

First Degree Murder Charge
Will be Lodged Against Man Who Sold Wood Alcohol.

Buffalo, July 28.—District Attorney Moore yesterday ordered a charge of first-degree murder filed against James G. Voelker, alleged distributor of poison liquor which has caused fourteen deaths in Buffalo.

More than a score of others have died in nearby towns and across the Canadian border from wood alcohol within the last week.

Voelker walked into police headquarters unexpectedly Tuesday morning and surrendered.

"We have evidence to show that Voelker knew he was selling wood alcohol," Mr. Moore said.

At least twenty persons have been arrested in connection with the poisonings in Western New York and Ontario. Five manslaughter charges have been filed and others were to be made later.

"CANDY KID" LOSES FIGHT FOR LIFE

Baltimore, July 28.—Richard Reese Whittemore's last move to evade the noose was defeated late Tuesday afternoon when Governor Ritchie refused to commute the bandit's sentence to life imprisonment.

The "Candy Kid" is scheduled to die in the early morning of Friday, August 13.

For two hours Edgar Allen Poe, Whittemore's attorney, argued that if the leader of the gang believed to have stolen $1,200,000 in jewels were hanged, it would be a "legal lynching." He told the governor the Maryland law provides that the "slaying of a penitentiary guard during an escape shall be defined as second degree murder."

Stunningly gowned, Margaret Whittemore, known as "Tiger Lil," the condemned man's wife, attended the hearing, listening intently to the attorney's argument.

TELLS HOW BOLT STRUCK PLANE

Dying Man Describes Experiences in Which Five Were Killed.

Berlin, July 28.—A graphic story has been told by a dying man of an airplane being struck by lightning in a great storm and its fall to the earth. The plane carrying four passengers from the Island of Borkum to Nordeney, in the North Sea, encountered a storm recently and fell in flames on the Island of Juist, which lies between the other two.

The pilot and three passengers, including a woman, were killed outright, and the sole survivor, a manufacturer, was seriously injured. He died soon afterward in the hospital, but was able before his death to give an account of the tragedy.

"The machine was flying at a height of 1000 feet when the storm broke," he said. "Thick clouds encircled us, while lightning flashed incessantly and torrents of rain tossed the machine in all directions."

"Suddenly we were blinded by a dazzling flash; a blast of terrible heat and suffocating smoke rendered us half unconscious. The airplane began to drop with increasing rapidity. Horror-stricken, we seized the hand straps. Everything seemed to happen in a few seconds. I remember just about the moment we struck the ground, I attempted to jump, and I only recovered my senses in the hands of the doctors."

CZAR'S FORTUNE IN ENGLISH BANK

Lack of Legal Proof of Death of Former Russian Emperor
Withholds Many Heirs.

London, July 28.—Italian newspapers received here contain a remarkable statement regarding the private fortune of the late Emperor of Russia.

"On the authority of a high personage formerly of the court of Nicholas the Second," it is declared that a capital sum of 12,000,000 pounds sterling, plus accrued interest, is still on deposit in London for the account of the late Czar. Surviving members of the royal family are said to be disposed to accept arbitration by King George or the King of Italy regarding the distribution of the wealth.

The difficulty in the way lies in the fact that no legal proof of the death of the Czar and his family exists. According to the authorities quoted the fortune before the war was much greater, but the Czar used great sums to meet his country's needs and alleviating war time distress. After the revolution a considerable amount was used in financing the plans for the escape of the royal family.

Inquiries of British and Russian officials in London throw little light on the whereabouts of the hoard. The Soviet embassy said that there is no doubt that large sums of Czarist money exist in several banks throughout Europe.

MEXICANS LYNCH MAYOR OF TOWN

Report Says That Attempted
Attack on Catholic Priest
Led to Summary Hanging.

Mexico City, July 28.—The first death from violence in the conflict between the government and the Catholic church to be reported is a lynching of the Mayor of Nochistan, State of Zacatecas, who attacked a Catholic priest there.

A correspondent for a national paper says that the priest and the mayor, Humberto Cervantes, had an argument in the mayor's office over registration, that the mayor shot at the priest and ordered him under arrest.

The villagers, becoming infuriated, hanged the mayor.

The report has not been confirmed. The Archbishop of Mexico, the most Rev. Mora y Del Rio, fainted through exhaustion in the City Cathedral Monday. He was engaged in the task of confirming about 5,000 children. He is 72 years old.

The Archbishop was revived and, despite the protests of his associates, returned with tottering steps and continued his holy offices.

BLUSH NO SIGN OF ROBBERY

Munich, Bavaria, July 28.—Blushing when spoken to by a goodlooking girl is not sufficient evidence to show an unsophisticated young man is guilty of a crime, the Munich Court of Appeals has ruled.

Lola Springer, a typist, lost a 50-mark bill on the street. Retracing her steps she accosted Emil Junge, the first person she happened to meet, and asked him whether he had found the money. Junge stammered that he had not; his face reddened; so Lola had him arrested. The Municipal Court fined him $100. He appealed and the higher court dismissed the case.

King Albert Eats "Near War" Bread

Brussels, July 28.—King Albert and Queen Elizabeth today ate dark bread—near-war bread—as part of the stringent measures of economy which have been put into effect in Belgium to stem the decline of the Belgian franc. The same bread is now being eaten in mansions on the Avenue Louise in Brussels and the most modest hamlet in Flanders.

The saving in bread alone is estimated at 10,000,000 francs a month, and when the new crops are harvested will amount to about 40,000,000 francs.

Why Girls Go Back Home

CATHARINE BRODY

Copyright 1926 by Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

"Why Girls Go Back Home" with Patsy Ruth Miller is a Warner production from this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Marie Downey, innocently involved in scandal by Clifford Dudley, an actor, climbs to stardom because of the notoriety. For three years she lives a gay life with Sally, her chum. Then she invites Clifford to her birthday party and makes a fool of him in front of the guests. John, a former sweetheart, comes to see her unannounced, confronts her at this moment, and tells her she is known in her home town as a prostitute. She resolves to "show the town up," and goes home.

He dragged her up the back stairs and did not loose his hold until Marie stood in her own room, which was, she noticed absently, untouched.

"Father," Marie had been entreating all the way up the stairs, "what's the rush all about? What's the matter?"

But Joseph Downey did not answer till he had shut the door of her room. Then he groaned and wiped his forehead.

"Are you mad? This'll ruin me. I tell you. The minister is coming to see you. He called me this morning. He said he was going to preach a sermon about you. Oh, Lord, what have I done that you should humble me so? My own daughter! Why, the Klan'll get you, Marie. You'll be run out of town and me with you—and me with you!"

"It's you who are mad, I should say," remarked Marie with composure. "You aren't a bit glad to see me, are you? You'd like me to take the next train back, wouldn't you?"

Marie thrust forward her foot and showed her new shoes.

Joseph Downey saw light ahead. "Will you, Marie? That's what you should do. I'm telling you for your own good."

"Unless you throw me out, father," said Marie, "I have no intention of leaving this hotel. And if you throw me out, I'll go and find another place to stay until I feel like leaving this town. There!"

Mr. Downey wrung his hands. "But why have you come home? You're getting along well in New York. It's mad, I tell you."

Marie only looked at him inscrutably.

"Yes, so everyone tells me," she sighed. "It's no good prolonging our greetings, is it father? We're not very successful at it, are we? And I'm tired."

"But what'll I do about the minister? And how did he know you were coming home, Marie? Have you done anything wrong—again?"

"The minister? Oh, I sent him a telegram. And don't do anything about him. You wouldn't have me refuse to see a minister, would you?"

"You—you sent him a telegram!" marveled Mr. Downey, and the strangeness of this lovely and self-possessed and perfectly groomed young woman who was his daughter penetrated to him in full force. She would not look at him, principally because her eyes were full of tears. She only waved her hand impatiently, and Mr. Downey retreated, shaking his head, and groaning occasional groans.

"It's not so easy," reflected Marie gloomily, sitting down on the small, narrow bed. She looked about the room, trying to remember how it had been part of home to her. There was a bright calendar which she had stuck up on the wall ages ago. And there were high school pictures. And there was a snapshot of John in front of his store, which she had taken. And there was another snapshot of John and herself, his arm about her waist, as someone had snapped them to the accompaniment of much laughter and teasing. My goodness! How badly the barber had cut her hair in those days. It was a few minutes before Mr. Downey came back, this time in high excitement.

"Marie! It's the minister's wife. She wants you on the telephone. What do you think it's for?"

"I know what it's for," said Marie impatiently. "For goodness sake, don't fuss so, father. You'll drive me crazy."

The telephone was out in the hall. The voice of the minister's wife was a sweet voice, oh, so ingratiating.

"I know you must be tired, Marie—I know you won't mind an old friend calling you Marie, though you are so rich and famous—I know you must be tired, but we simply felt, you having done so much for Winesville, that we couldn't let your first day home pass without welcoming you by it. I called up the Ladies' Aid Society members, and they feel 'us' the same way about it, seeing how much you've done for us. So we thought we'd have a little gathering at my house tonight. Just a little carding. Just to welcome you home."

"That's so good of you," said Marie just as sweetly.

"Oh, no! It's you who're good to us. I can't tell you how Mr. Parsons appreciates it. He'll tell you to him, too. He meant to come and see you, but I said no, the poor child's spent a day on the train, she must want to rest. And so we'll see you at the little gathering, and we'll be so glad to see you. I'd call on you myself this morning, but you know, I'll be so busy cooking, and I guess you'll appreciate some home cooked food for a change. New York, don't get that anyway, do they, Marie?"

"What does she want you for?" agonized Mr. Downey, as Marie hung up the receiver.

"It's just a little gathering she's giving for me tonight," Marie informed him sweetly.

"Mrs. Parsons is giving—for you!" gasped Mr. Downey.

Marie turned on him with pity. "You might as well know, father, that this town is out to kill the fattest calf for me, or the fattest chicken, or whatever you have out here. Mr. Parsons wrote me about the fund for building what they call the social extension to the church. So I wired him that I would give five thousand dollars. And you see how Winesville bleats. 'Five thousand dollars!' whistled Mr. Downey. 'Have you got so much money, Marie?'"

"Oh, father! And don't ask me where I got it, which you're going to be in a minute. I earned it all, every bit of it, with my little voice and my little legs and my little dimple. Imagine the profits of a leg show going to build an extension to the church. It's killing! Oh, it's killing!"

Squashing her little traveling hat down over her sleek head, she walked, still with that ironic smile about her lips, out into Main Street. Her objective was the Ross Department Store. This time, there was no loitering near the window, hoping that John would come out. Marie proceeded haughtily along the aisle to where John stood, rooted to the spot.

"How do you do, John," said Marie politely.

He could only swallow and nod. "Are you going to be at the gathering tonight? I expect you, you know. It's in my honor."

A piteous flush rose to his cheeks.

"Don't go, Marie. I can't hear it. They only want to stare at you. They'll say nasty things to you—about you."

Marie threw back her head and laughed.

"Come and see. They'll be as sweet as sugar pie to me. They won't dare be otherwise. I've new shoes and I mean to wear my most Parisian gown."

"Oh, please, Marie, I couldn't bear it for you. I guess you know. I haven't slept for thinking of what I said to you. I—I guess I was too worked up."

"I said I'd show you," said Marie sternly. "Now you must come and see. All you hypocrites, father and you, too, you'll see how Winesville takes me to its bosom, hateful town. I never want to see it again!"

"Then why—why did you come back?" begged John. "Just to torture me?"

Marie shrugged.

"Oh, you flatter yourself. Why does any girl come back home when she succeeds? To show off?"

She walked out with a good imitation of carefree indifference. But she knew it was not true.

The very moment when, arriving a little late, as was proper, Marie stepped into the Parsons' crowded parlor, in her most Parisian evening dress, she had tasted the full sweetness of her revenge.

John needn't have been concerned about the dress, for it was so Parisian in its extreme modesty of chiffon that none in Winesville could detect the subtleties of that modesty.

SAVAGES AFRAID OF AIRPLANES

Exploring Party in Guinea Find That Wild Men Live in Deadly Fear of Flyers.

San Francisco, July 28.—Thrilling adventures have attended the American-Dutch expedition into Dutch New Guinea, it is indicated in advices received here from members of the party.

Much of the exploration work, as was contemplated, was done by airplane, flying over mountain land and jungle in which a chance landing would have involved serious if not disastrous consequences owing to the impenetrable nature of the undergrowth, swamp lands, hostility of uncivilized tribesmen and poisonous character of plant and insect life.

The party that left here under the leadership of Prof. M. W. Stirling, of Berkeley, California, later was reorganized under Dutch leadership. It took many photographs of the interior of the island which for centuries has been virtually unexplored by white men. Lakes and many native villages were discovered and the scientists had an opportunity to study at first-hand cannibalistic tribes and the wild country they inhabit.

On one occasion several canoes full of natives approached the airplane with the evident intent of attacking it, Professor Stirling said. When the ship took to the air, however, the savages fled in terror.

Returning from one flight into the interior the big airplane was found to contain just three quarts of gasoline.

Corn Bread A Delicacy

Corn bread may become something of a delicacy in Pennsylvania next winter for July 1 crop forecasts of the Department of Agriculture indicate a decrease of 21,000,000 bushels in the state's corn yield compared with the 1925 estimated harvest. The July estimate placed the crop at 51,668,000 bushels.

However, what the state may lack in corn products, apparently may be made up in increased production of apples for all indications point to a bumper crop.

It is not advisable to reward where men have the tenderness not to punish.

MOST HARROWING KISS IN WORLD

Tourists to Ireland's Famous Blarney Stone Declare Escape the Biggest Thriller.

What is the most famous stone in the world?

Many patriotic Americans will advance the claims of Plymouth Rock. Englishmen will no doubt insist that it is the Stone of Scone, on which their kings are crowned, and on which tradition says Jacob pillowed his head. Scientists and scholars will vote for the Rosetta Stone, whose parallel columns of inscriptions unlocked the rich records of ancient Egypt.

But importance and fame are not necessarily synonymous. The man in the street will probably carry the vote overwhelmingly for the stone that is so well known that it has created a noun, an adjective, and a verb in the English language: the Blarney Stone.

Tourists Stream to Massive Tower

The owner of the Blarney Stone—and, incidentally, of Blarney Castle and Blarney estate—Sir George Colthurst, died recently, and the property has passed to his son of the same name. In connection with this change of ownership in Ireland's greatest tourist magnet, the following bulletin on the stone has been released from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society:

"Blarney—village, castle and stone—is geographically a sort of adjunct of the city of Cork," says the bulletin. "But when one witnesses the haste of tourists to push on to the castle he is tempted to turn the relationship about and consider Cork as merely the convenient gateway to the romantically famous stone. The traveler bound for Blarney journeys five miles northwest from Cork, then one hundred and twenty-five feet up winding stone stairs to the top of the massive castle tower. The latter dimension is far the more important; for in order to kiss the bit of rock one must hang head down, someone holding on to his legs, with nothing between him and the ground but a few weathery, impatient tree-tops, far below. Romantic philanderers to the contrary, notwithstanding, this is probably the world's most hair-raising and goose-flesh-producing kiss."

Walls Eighteen Feet Thick

"Blarney Castle was built in the fifteenth century as a great family fortress, that of the MacCarthys, chieftains of Munster. Homes had to withstand sieges in those days, and the tower of Blarney was built to be siege-proof. these loop-holes that he who would kiss the Blarney Stone must be lowered.

"The stone itself is one of the rectangular building blocks of which the tower is constructed and lies in the outer wall just below the overhanging structure. A noticeable depression has been worn in it by the hundreds of thousands of lips that have been pressed against it since the odd legend in regard to it arose. The legend, so potent that it has worn down the old tower steps and has turned countless visitors upside down, is that he who kisses the stone will be endowed with irresistible eloquence—will receive 'the gift of Blarney.'"

First "Blarney" Used On English

"The origin of the legend is a subject of dispute. One version has it that a MacCarthy, invested by an overwhelming English force, successfully put the English leader off month after month, each time offering a new and plausible excuse for a delay in surrendering the stronghold. Legends, too, have grown up about the origin of the stone. One asserts that it was brought to Ireland by Phoenician colonists, and had previously been a 'mighty talisman' in both Syria and Carthage.

"Because kissing the Blarney Stone is such a hair-raising experience, many who climb the narrow stairway to the top of the tower do not perform the rite, but their climb is not wholly in vain. From the tower one sees spread out miles of as lovely and peaceful a section of Ireland as is to be found; rolling hills; tiny, sparkling lakes; green woodlands, and here and there a quaint thatched-roof cottage.

"There have been inroads into the groves of Blarney; but the shady estate is beautiful yet. Near the entrance gates is a tea-house where the inevitable refreshments and souvenir post-cards are sold. Blarney village, alongside the estate, has a population of about 1000 souls. The inhabitants have not capitalized their supposed opportunities and become a community of orators. They follow the matter-of-fact industry of weaving tweed."

Why Girls Go Back Home

BY CATHARINE BRODY

Copyright 1926 by Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

"Why Girls Go Back Home" with Patsy Ruth Miller is a Warner production from the novel.

SYNOPSIS

Marie Downey, innocently involved in scandal by Clifford Dudley, an actor, climbs to stardom because of the notoriety. For three years she lives a gay life with Sally, her chum. Then she invites Clifford to her birthday party and makes a fool of him in front of the guests. John, a former sweetheart, comes to see her unannounced, confronts her at this moment, and tells her she is known in her home town as a prostitute. She resolves to "show the town up," and goes home.

He dragged her up the back stairs and did not loose his hold until Marie stood in her own room, which was, she noticed absently, untouched.

"Father," Marie had been treating all the way up the stairs, "what's the rush all about? What's the matter?"

But Joseph Downey did not answer till he had shut the door of her room. Then he groaned and wiped his forehead.

"Are you mad? This'll ruin me, I tell you. The minister is coming to see you. He called me this morning. He said he was going to preach a sermon about you. Oh, Lord, what have I done that you should humble me so? My own daughter! Why, the Klan'll get you, Marie. You'll be run out of town and me with you—and me with you!"

"It's you who are mad, I should say," remarked Marie with composure. "You aren't a bit glad to see me, are you? You'd like me to take the next train back, wouldn't you?"

Marie thrust forward her foot and showed her new shoes.

Joseph Downey saw light ahead. "Will you, Marie? That's what you should do. I'm telling you for your own good."

"Unless you throw me out, father," said Marie. "I have no intention of leaving this hotel. And if you throw me out, I'll go and find another place to stay until I feel like leaving this town. There!"

Mr. Downey wrung his hands. "But why have you come home? You're getting along well in New York. It's mad, I tell you."

Marie only looked at him inscrutably.

"Yes, so everyone tells me," she sighed. "It's no good prolonging our greetings, is it father? We're not very successful at it, are we? And I'm tired."

"But what'll I do about the minister? And how did he know you were coming home, Marie? Have you done anything wrong—again?"

"The minister? Oh, I sent him a telegram. And don't do anything about him. You wouldn't have me refuse to see a minister, would you?"

"You—you sent him a telegram!" marveled Mr. Downey, and the strangeness of this lovely and self-possessed and perfectly groomed young woman who was his daughter penetrated to him in full force. She would not look at him, principally because her eyes were full of tears. She only waved her hand impatiently, and Mr. Downey retreated, shaking his head, and groaning occasionally.

"It's not so easy," reflected Marie gloomily, sitting down on the small, narrow bed. She looked about the room, trying to remember how it had been part of home to her. There was a bright calendar which she had stuck up on the wall ages ago. And there were high school pictures. And there was a snapshot of John in front of his store, which she had taken, and there was another snapshot of John and herself, his arm about her waist, as someone had snapped them to the accompaniment of much laughter and teasing. My goodness! How badly the barber had cut her hair in those days. It was a few minutes before Mr. Downey came back, this time in high excitement.

"Marie! It's the minister's wife. She wants you on the telephone. What do you think it's for?"

"I know what it's for," said Marie impatiently. "For goodness sake, don't fuss so, father. You'll drive me crazy."

The telephone was out in the hall. The voice of the minister's wife was a sweet whine, oh, so ingratiating.

"I know you must be tired, Marie—I know you won't mind an old friend calling you Marie, though you are so rich and famous—I know you must be tired, but we simply felt you having done so much for Winesville, that we couldn't let your first day home pass without welcoming you. I called up the Ladies' Aid Society members, and they feel just the same way about it, seeing how much you've done for us. So we thought we'd have a little gathering at my house tonight, just a little gathering, just to welcome you home."

"That's so good of you," said Marie just as sweetly.

"Oh, no! It's you who're good to us. I can't tell you how Mr. Parsons appreciates it. He meant to come and see you, but I said no, the poor child's spent a day on the train, she must want to rest. And so we'll see you at the little gathering, and we'll be so glad to see you. I'd call on you myself this morning, but you know, I'll be so busy cooking, and I guess you'll appreciate some home cooked food for a change. New Yorkers don't get that anyway, do they, Marie?"

"What does she want you for?" agonized Mr. Downey, as Marie hung up the receiver.

"It's just a little gathering she's giving for me tonight," Marie informed him sweetly.

"Mrs. Parsons is giving — for you?" gasped Mr. Downey.

Marie turned on him with pity.

"You might as well know, father, that this town is out to kill the fatted calf for me, or the fatted chicken, or whatever you have out here. Mr. Parsons wrote me about the fund for building what they call the social extension to the church. So I wired him that I would give five thousand dollars. And you see how Winesville bites."

"Five thousand dollars!" whispered Mr. Downey. "Have you got so much money, Marie?"

"Oh, father! And don't ask me where I got it, which you're going to do in a minute. I earned it all, every bit of it, with my little voice, and my little legs and my little dimple. Imagine the profits of a leg show going to build an extension to the church. It's killing! Oh, I Sally were only here."

Squashing her little traveling hat down over her sleek head, she walked, still with that ironic smile about her lips, out into Main Street. Her objective was the Ross Department Store. This time there was no loitering near the window, hoping that John would come out. Marie proceeded haughtily along the aisle to where John stood, rooted to the spot.

"How do you do, John," said Marie politely.

He could only swallow and nod.

"Are you going to be at the gathering tonight? I expect you, you know. It's in my honor."

A piteous flush rose to his cheeks.

"Don't go, Marie. I can't bear it. They only want to stare at you. They'll say nasty things to you—about you."

Marie threw back her head and laughed.

"Come and see. They'll be as sweet as sugar pie to me. They won't dare be otherwise. I've new shoes and I mean to wear my most Parisian gown."

"Oh, please, Marie. I couldn't bear it for you. I guess you know. I haven't slept for thinking of what I said to you. I—I guess I was too worked up."

"I said I'd show you," said Marie sternly. "Now you must come and see. All you hypocrites, father and you, too, you'll see how Winesville takes me to its bosom, hateful town. I never want to see it again!"

"Then why—why did you come back?" begged John. "Just to torture me?"

Marie shrugged.

"Oh, you flatter yourself. Why does any girl come back home when she succeeds? To show off? She walked out with a glow of satisfaction of carefree indifference. But she knew it was not true."

The very moment when, arriving a little late, as was proper, Marie stepped into the Parsons' crowded parlor, in her most Parisian evening dress, she had tasted the full sweetness of her revenge.

John needn't have been concerned about the dress, for it was so Parisian in its extreme modesty of chiffon that none in Winesville could detect the subtleties of that modesty.

SAVAGES AFRAID OF AIRPLANES

Exploring Party in Guinea Find That Wild Men Live in Deadly Fear of Flyers.

San Francisco, July 28.—Thrilling adventures have attended the American-Dutch expedition into Dutch New Guinea, it is indicated in advices received here from members of the party.

Much of the exploration work, as was contemplated, was done by airplane, flying over mountain land and jungle in which a chance landing would have involved serious if not disastrous consequences owing to the impenetrable nature of the undergrowth, swamp lands, hostility of uncivilized tribesmen and poisonous character of plant and insect life.

The party that left here under the leadership of Prof. M. W. Stirling, of Berkeley, California, later was reorganized under Dutch leadership. It took many photographs of the interior of the island which for centuries has been virtually unexplored by white men. Lakes and many native villages were discovered and the scientists had an opportunity to study at first-hand cannibalistic tribes and the wild country they inhabit.

On one occasion several canoes full of natives approached the airplane with the evident intent of attacking it, Professor Stirling said. When the ship took to the air, however, the savages fled in terror.

Returning from one flight into the interior the big airplane was found to contain just three quarts of gasoline.

Corn Bread A Delicacy

Corn bread may become something of a delicacy in Pennsylvania next winter for July 1 crop forecasts of the Department of Agriculture indicate a decrease of 21,000,000 bushels in the state's corn yield compared with the 1925 estimated harvest. The July estimate placed the crop at 51,668,000 bushels.

However, what the state may lack in corn products, apparently may be made up in increased production of apples for all indications point to a bumper crop.

MOST HARROWING KISS IN WORLD

Tourists to Ireland's Famous Blarney Stone Declare Escaped the Biggest Thriller.

What is the most famous stone in the world?

Many patriotic Americans will advance the claims of Plymouth Rock. Englishmen will no doubt insist that it is the Stone of Scone, on which their kings are crowned, and on which tradition says Jacob pillowed his head. Scientists and scholars will vote for the Rosetta Stone, whose parallel columns of inscriptions unlocked the rich records of ancient Egypt.

But importance and fame are not necessarily synonymous. The man in the street will probably carry the vote overwhelmingly for the stone that is so well known that it has created a noun, an adjective, and a verb in the English language: the Blarney Stone.

Tourists Stream to Massive Tower
The owner of the Blarney Stone—and, incidentally, of Blarney Castle and Blarney estate—Sir George Colthurst, died recently, and the property has passed to his son of the same name. In connection with this change of ownership in Ireland's greatest tourist magnet, the following bulletin on the stone has been released from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society:

"Blarney—village, castle and stone—is geographically a sort of adjunct of the city of Cork," says the bulletin. "But when one witnesses the haste of tourists to push on to the castle he is tempted to turn the relationship about and consider Cork as merely the convenient gateway to the romantically famous stone. The traveler bound for Blarney journeys five miles northwest from Cork, then one hundred and twenty-five feet up winding stone stairs to the top of the massive castle tower. The latter dimension is far the more important; for in order to kiss the bit of rock one must hang head down, someone holding on to his legs, with nothing between him and the ground but a few weathery, impotent tree-tops, far elbow. Romantic phillanderers to the contrary, notwithstanding, this is probably the world's most hair-raising and goose-flesh-producing kiss."

Walls Eighteen Feet Thick
"Blarney Castle was built in the fifteenth century as a great family fortress, that of the MacCarthys, chieftains of Munster. Homes had to withstand sieges in those days, and the tower of Blarney was built to be siege-proof. We learn from the last Catholic Mirror that hereafter none but Catholic students will be received at Mt. St. Mary's College, near Emmitsburg.

The first number of a new German paper, called the "Advocate and Botschafter," has been issued by H. F. Thomas, York. It is a large weekly journal, devoted to the advocacy of Whig principles, is printed on new type, and presents a handsome appearance. It has our most cordial wishes for its success.

Suicide.—On the evening of the 13th inst., Mr. John Hollibaugh, of Union township, put an end to his existence by hanging himself on a tree near his residence. He had been depressed in spirits for some time.

The Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania of the Order of Odd Fellows has now under its jurisdiction about 430 lodges, numbering about 43,000 members. The increase of members in the state during the past year has been 5000.

Prentice, of the Louisville Journal, says he is in favor of short dresses; that "he has not much time to spend with the ladies, and therefore, while with them, he wishes to see as much of them as he can, with propriety."

Don't get tipsy; don't quarrel with your friends; don't fancy yourself the meekest or handsomest man in Christendom; don't despise the poor; don't condemn any one unheard; don't strike any man who is beyond your reach; don't forget to pay the printer, now don't.

Temperance.—It is said that 600 men, good and true, in the county of Muhlenburgh, Kentucky, have entered into a solemn obligation or pledge that they will support no man for any office, who treats or uses liquor to promote his election. Good!

Strange Surgical Operation.—A young lady at Cincinnati had been in the habit of twisting her hair so tightly that the scalp parted from the skull, and an operation had to be performed last week to remove the matter, which had accumulated beneath.

Removal.—Dr. J. Lawrence Hill, dentist, has removed his office to the building opposite the Lutheran church, on Chambersburg street, 2 doors east of Mr. Middlecoff's store, where he may at all times be found ready and willing to attend to any case within the province of the dentist. Persons in want of full sets of teeth are respectfully invited to call. References: Dr. D. Horner, Dr. H. S. Huber, Dr. D. Gilbert, Rev. C. P. Krauth, D. D., Prof. M. Jacobs, Prof. H. L. Snappy Paragraphs

By George Bingham

A stranger carrying a small square box, calling himself a doctor, wanted to take a corn off of Silo Kildew's toe at Bounding Billows last Saturday free of charge for advertising purposes, but Silo did not care to put his feet on exhibition and have them stared at by an inquisitive public.

Fletcher Henstep got up and talked in meeting last Sunday, but he talked so low nobody could understand him. Sid Hocks says about all such a voice is good for is to go fishing with.

Cricket Hicks wanted to ask Clark Hancock for a dollar yesterday afternoon, but never did get any further than clearing his throat.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE OTHER FELLOW

YOU are your brother's keeper only as you can help him.

To speak ill or falsely about another, or to circulate mere hearsay is to pour poison into your own life. Most people have a hard enough time to extract happiness from their efforts without having someone else adding to their struggle with idle and pernicious gossip.

Think of the other fellow as yourself and you will not go far wrong in your estimate of him.

The other fellow is always needing a friend. At its best this is a friendless world. The child feels it—and the grownup does, too.

Nothing inspires like the friendly pat on the back, the small word of encouragement, a little thoughtful gift, or an unlooked for service rendered. Remember that you are the other fellow!

The other fellow is watching you and you are watching him. You are possible friends.

By putting yourself in the other fellow's place you often change your whole attitude toward him, and he toward you.

No man is fit to pass judgment upon another. It's because no one as yet has ever been able to accurately read another's heart. A man is his heart.

What a world of other fellows! Each one hoping, striving, praying, believing—and working on and on.

Stay the other fellow and you won't have much trouble in this world.

THE LIGHT OF HOME

Much I've done and much I've seen,
To many places I have been,
But to me there's no delight
Like the lights of home at night.
Porch globe twinkling from afar,
Window lights which softer are,
Shining through the inky gloom
From a peaceful happy room.

I've seen lights on ships at sea,
Lights that flash incessantly,
Beacon lamps, and those that shine
In some merchant's costly sign,
But my pulses faster beat
As I turn a little street
And I see the lights of home
Twinkling at me through the gloam.

Rest is here, they seem to say,
Peace is here to close the day,
Love is waiting to embrace
You within this little place,
Hurry faster! Hurry in!
Where there's neither hate nor sin
Nor the cruelty and care
Of the greedy world out there.

Hurry in and sit you down,
And forget the noisy town,
Shut the door and put away
All the burdens of the day.
Come and let them stroke your cheek,
Let them laugh to hear you speak,
Here all selfish bickerings cease,
Here are love and rest and peace.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

Was Professor Jim Crow explaining the different leaves to the little rabbits in the last story? Guess he was, if your Uncle Dave's Memory Hat fits him properly. And I'm sure the little poodle dog salesman at the Three-in-One Cent Store in Rabbitville has fitted me correctly. Very few mistakes are made at that famous shop, let me tell you, Little Reader. No, siree. It gives perfect satisfaction to all the little people in Rabbitland.

"Well, I guess that's about all," sighed the old crow, closing his Wisdom Book with a slam. "But I thought it was a good opportunity to tell you something about leaves. Most trees and bushes when autumn comes will be stripped of all their leaves and remain bare until the winter is passed. We birds would feel mighty sad if they were without leaves all the year round. What would we do for shelter and shade? And how could we hide our nests? Dear, Oh dear. Without leaves the forest would lose its beauty."

"And the trees would die," added wise Uncle Lucky. "The leaves are to a tree what lungs are to an animal. Yes, sir. The trees breathe through their leaves. But, we must be going along, my little nephew and I," and politely raising his precious wedding stovepipe hat, the kind old gentleman rabbit started off in the Luckymobile.

"Where shall we go, Oh, where shall we go? Anywhere, everywhere, where the winds blow!"

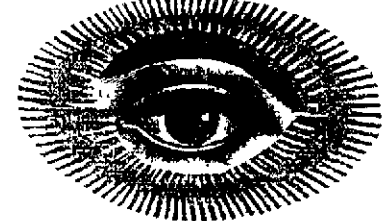

sang the little rabbit, at the top of his voice. He didn't care, not the least bit, just as long as he sat beside his dear Uncle and the rubber wheels went round and round, rumble de bumble over the ground.

Well, anyway, as the two little bunnies rolled along, the road turned off to the right and off to the left, just like the letter Y. "Now which way shall we go?" asked dear Uncle Lucky, trying to look both ways at once to see which was the better route. All of a sudden a little voice said:

"I'm not going either way, But just as the wind shall blow. I have spun me threads like the cotton seed That must find a place to grow."

"Where are you?" asked the little rabbit, looking about for the owner of the tiny voice.

"Here I am," and the next minute he spied Mrs. Spider atop an old rail post. "I've just climbed up here," she went on. "Now watch me," and turning her face towards the breeze, she commenced to spin a lot of fine silky threads that streamed out on the air like the threads of the cotton seed. Pretty soon she gave a spring

DRINK WATER IF BACK OR KIDNEYS HURT

Begin Taking Salts if You Feel Backache or Have Bladder Weakness.

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, the stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders. Adv.

Get Long Vacations

Vacation time is beginning to decimate the ranks of Capitol Hill workers. Under the administrative code passed by the 1923 legislative employees are allowed a vacation of fifteen days each year. The period does not include Sundays or Saturday afternoons which are holidays so that the vacation amounts to almost three calendar weeks.

Office Nears Completion

The interior of the new south office building is beginning to take on a completed look. Workmen are putting the finishing touches on the marble wainscoting in the halls and corridors. This work was delayed for some time and will be finished within the next several months. The slabs come numbered and are placed according to the number.

GIRLHOOD TO MOTHERHOOD

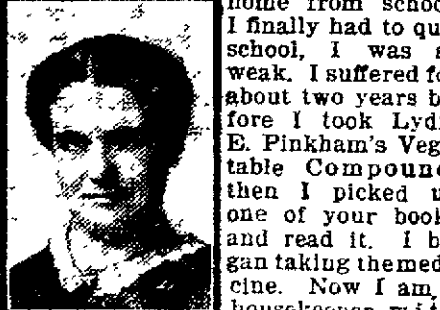

Iowa Woman Found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Always Helpful

Vinton, Iowa.—"When I was seventeen years old I had to stay at home from school.

I finally had to quit school. I was so weak. I suffered for about two years before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, then I picked up one of your books and read it. I began taking the medicine. Now I am a housekeeper with six children, and I have taken it before each one was born. I cannot tell you all the good I have received from it. When I am not as well as can be I take it. I have been doing this for over thirteen years and it always helps me. I read all of your little books I can get and I tell everyone I know what the Vegetable Compound does for me."—Mrs. FRANK SELLERS, 510 7th Avenue, Vinton, Iowa.

Many girls in the fourth generation are learning through their own personal experiences the beneficial effects of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mothers who took it when they were young are glad to recommend it to their daughters.

For over half a century, women have praised this reliable medicine.

SEVENTY FIVE YEARS AGO

Governor Johnston will be with us in September.—The following citizens of Gettysburg: A. R. Stevenson, Daniel M. Smyser, R. G. Harper, J. D. Paxton, George Arnold, D. McConeghy, A. Cobean, R. Horner, J. B. McPherson, R. G. McCreary, J. D. Middlecoff, John Picking and Benjamin Schriver, having issued an invitation to the Whig candidate for governor, to meet his numerous friends in the "Young Guard," were favored with the following reply:

Kingston House, Westmoreland Co., Pa., July 18, 1851.
To Messrs. Stevenson, Smyser and others, Committee.
Gentlemen: I beg to return my warmest thanks to the citizens of Adams county for their kind invitation to visit them during the present campaign. It will afford me sincere pleasure to accept an invitation which will enable me to make in person my acknowledgements to the good people of your county for their long continued and unflinching support and friendship.

Tuesday, the 2nd of September next, will suit my previous arrangements to meet my friends in Gettysburg.

I am most truly yours,
William F. Johnston.

"Where shall we go, Oh, where shall we go? Anywhere, everywhere, where the winds blow?"

sang the little rabbit at the top of his voice. He didn't care, not the least bit, just as long as he sat beside his dear Uncle and the rubber wheels went round and round, rumble de bumble over the ground.

Well, anyway, as the two little bunnies rolled along, the road turned off to the right and off to the left, just like the letter Y. "Now which way shall we go?" asked dear Uncle Lucky, trying to look both ways at once to see which was the better route. All of a sudden a little voice said:

"I'm not going either way, But just as the wind shall blow. I have spun me threads like the cotton seed That must find a place to grow."

"Where are you?" asked the little rabbit, looking about for the owner of the tiny voice.

"Here I am," and the next minute he spied Mrs. Spider atop an old rail post. "I've just climbed up here," she went on. "Now watch me," and turning her face towards the breeze, she commenced to spin a lot of fine silky threads that streamed out on the air like the threads of the cotton seed. Pretty soon she gave a spring

DRINK WATER
IF BACK OR KIDNEYS HURT

Begin Taking Salts if You Feel Backache or Have Bladder Weakness.

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, the stomach sour, tongue coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

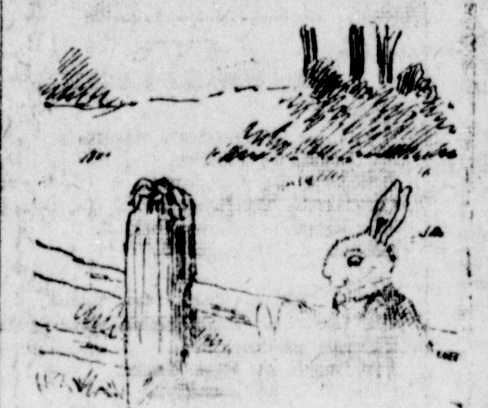

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders. Adv.

upward from the post top, and floated away on the air.

"Goodness me!" exclaimed the little rabbit, "how wonderful! But why did she do it?"

"To find a place where there is more food," answered wise Uncle Lucky, smiling down at his curious little nephew. "But, look at that tall blade of grass." Goodness me, some 50 baby spiders, no bigger than the head of a pin, had left their home to climb to the very tip of that grass stalk. The next minute, feeling the wind blowing, they boldly spun their silk threads, just the way their mother had, and tossing themselves right into the arms of Billy Breeze, away they went across the Sunny Meadow to find a new home. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Get Long Vacations

Vacation time is beginning to decimate the ranks of Capitol Hill workers. Under the administrative code passed by the 1923 legislature employees are allowed a vacation of fifteen days each year. The period does not include Sundays or Saturday afternoons which are holidays so that the vacation amounts to almost three calendar weeks.

Office Nears Completion

The interior of the new south office building is beginning to take on a completed look. Workmen are putting the finishing touches on the marble wainscoting in the halls and corridors. This work was delayed for some time and will be finished within the next several months. The slabs come numbered and are placed according to the number.

GIRLHOOD TO MOTHERHOOD

Iowa Woman Found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Always Helpful

Vinton, Iowa.—"When I was seventeen years old I had to stay at home from school. I finally had to quit school. I was so weak. I suffered for about two years before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, then I picked up one of your books and read it. I began taking the medicine. Now I am a housekeeper with six children, and I have taken it before each one was born. I cannot tell you all the good I have received from it. When I am not as well as can be I take it. I have been doing this for over thirteen years and it always helps me. I read all of your little books I can get and I tell everyone I know what the Vegetable Compound does for me."—MRS. FRANK SELLERS, 510 7th Avenue, Vinton, Iowa.

Many girls in the fourth generation are learning through their own personal experiences the beneficial effects of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mothers who took it when they were young are glad to recommend it to their daughters.

For over half a century, women have praised this reliable medicine.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, John Utz, who departed this life July 28, 1922, four years ago today.

No one knows the sad heartaches, Only those who have lost can tell Of the grief that is borne in silence, For the one we loved so well.

Often we wonder to the lonely grave-yard To place flowers with tender care On the grave of our dear loved one, Who lies gently sleeping there,

What happy hours we once enjoyed, How sweet the memory still, But death has left us a loneliness This world can never fill.

Often when my heart is aching, It seems I hear you say: "Keep up, dear mother, We will meet again some day."

In my heart your memory lingers, Sweetly, fond and true, There is not a day, That we do not think of you

What a beautiful memory he left behind! I can see his dear face before me, and still feel his hand in mine, The last sweet look he gave me still lingers in my mind.
